

Module Code	AH-4319
Module Title	Rise of Populism and International Relations
Degree/Diploma	Bachelor of Arts (History and International Studies)
Type of Module	Major Option
Modular Credits	4	Total Student Workload	8 hours/week
		Contact Hours	4 hours/week
Prerequisite	None
Anti-requisite	None
Aims This module introduces varieties of populism, emphasizing the point that populism is not confined to popular explanations of anti-elitism, anti-pluralism or right wing populism. It will discuss how varieties of populism play out in the practice of international relations especially issues of security, trade and development.
Learning Outcomes On successful completion of this module, a student will be expected to be able to:
Lower order:	10%	- Describe the various concepts of populism across time and space
Middle order:	10%	- Understand different forms of populism and how their impact on international relations
Higher order:	80%	- Appraise the different forms of populism across space and time and its impact on the maintenance of global public good. - Evaluate the varying impact of populism to international relations - Argue the various options adopted by states in reaction to populism. - Justify the need to employ strategies to states’ maintenance of global public good like security, environment, trade etc. - Evaluate the impact of the rise of populism to state’s development and to the maintenance of state’s bilateral and multilateral relations and securing international order
Module Contents - Background to historical and present forms of populism - Approaches to populism - Characteristics and various features of populism - Emergence of populism across time and space - Impacts of populism on key global governance organisations - Populism and global and regional security arrangement - Populism and global environmental policies - Populism and international trade and finance
Assessment	Formative Assessment	Weekly assessment and feedback
	Summative Assessment	Examination: None Coursework: 100% 2 Class Tests (25% each) 1 individual tutorial presentation (20%) 2 individual written assignments (30%)	